

Published in Young Post on 13th November 2012

No place for cameras in class

I am responding to the letter "School CCTV is fine" (Young Post, October 30), about the controversy over installing CCTV cameras in classrooms.

Overall, I think installing such systems at school is necessary, but not in classrooms. This way, school security is ensured without violating the privacy of students and teachers. No students like to be monitored and everyone wants more freedom. Installing cameras is only one way to strengthen school security.

Steven Ip , Fanling Rhenish Church Secondary School