

Published in Young Post on 19th November 2012

In favour of CCTV cameras

I am writing in response to the letter "School TV is fine" (Young Post, October 30). I strongly support the idea of schools installing CCTV cameras.

First, cameras can boost security on campus. For example, people won't be able to steal expensive equipment.

Second, cameras are an effective way to safeguard students' property and prevent bullying. Everyone has the right to feel safe at school and a CCTV system can prevent wrongdoing.

Some students may think cameras violate privacy but the benefits definitely outweigh the disadvantages. However, I don't think cameras should be installed inside toilets. That is a step too far.

Ma Sze-ting, Fanling Rhenish Church Secondary School